The Method of Staking

(Article II. in the Quartermaster's Series)

William C. Gretzinger, Captain and Quartermaster, Twelfth Infantry.

ONE of the most necessary things to be learned, in laying out a camp, is the kinds of stakes and their uses. A common error in staking is the use of the wrong kind of stakes, thereby not only detracting from the general appearance of the camp, but also taking away certain comforts that the use of the proper kind of stakes give.

For the purpose of ready reference, below is given a list of the different kinds of tents and stakes, used in the National Guard of Pennsylvania:—

Hospital tent and two flies (Floor size, 14 ft. by 28 ft., with front fly)
Thirty-eight 16 in. pins; eighteen 24 in. pins.

Wall tent and two flies (Floor size, 9 ft. by 18 ft, with front fly)
Twenty-six 16 in. pins; ten 24 in. pins.

"A" Wall tent with attached flies (Floor size, 7 ft. by 8½ ft.) For enlisted men
Eight 33 in. pins, double notch; fourteen 16 in. pins.

"A" Wall tent, old style
Sixteen 16 in. pins.

Stable Fly, Length, 50 ft.
Thirty 16 in. pins; fifty 33 in. pins.

Mess tent, 50 ft. long by 18 ft. wide
Fifty-four 24 in pins; sixty-seven 16 in pins.

The 33 inch pins are for the use of the Enlisted men's tents and the outside stakes for stable fly onlv. In all cases use 16 in. pins for the foot pins.

When staking, slope the pin away from the tent at an angle of 45 degrees; never slope them towards the tent, for such position decreases the power of resistance.

The matter of alignment, in laying out a camp, is highly essential. It enters into the appearance of the camp in many different ways. If the stakes are carefully and properly aligned when first set, the topographical conditions being favorable, when the canvas is erected, everything should be on a line.

Given the four corners of a camp, the stakes for the various streets should be first set. The lines should be run marking the front and rear lines of tents. When the stakes have been carefully set and the lines properly stretched, a large number of men, in command of an experienced officer, either commissioned or non-commissioned, can be used in driving the balance of the stakes. To facilitate stake driving, some commands use a frame, rectangular in form, with projecting arms, and notches cut where the stakes are to be driven. This is one of the quickest, but not the most accurate methods of staking. The chief objection to this method lies in the fact that the frame is not always carefully laid down when transferring it from point to point; in the driving of the stakes the frame is apt to move and very frequently it is hit by mallets in the hands of careless persons and demolished. The best method of staking can be obtained by the use of a tape-line, a steel tape being preferred for obvious reasons. This method necessitates a carefully prepared plan showing all the distances and particularly the distance between stakes. Such a plan should be in the hands of every quartermaster, and he should be so familiar with it that he could readily call off any distance without reference to the plan.

In staking a camp, whether the four corners are given or not, the following distances should be observed:

Camp of Twelve Company Regiment;

Headquarters' mess	20 feet
Street (Staff, non. com. and hospital corps)	20 "
Colonel's line	28 "
Colonel's street	60 "
Line officers' tents	20 "
Line officers' street	30 "
Company tents	126 "
Street	15 "
Mess tents	50 "
Street	10 feet
Kitchens	14 "
Kitchens to water line	25 "
Water line to sinks	70 "
Sinks	7 "
Variation	1 "
Width of camp	496 feet

The distances between the headquarters tents can easily be determined by taking, first the whole distance of the line, subtracting therefrom the widths of the various tents to be erected on that line and then dividing the remainder by the number of spaces between tents; thus:—

Length of Colonel's line, 12 Co. Regt.		442 ft.
Five hospital tents 14 ft. wide, each	70
Sixteen officers tents, 9 ft. wide, each	144	214
Divide by twenty spaces	20	228
Giving distance between tents		11 2-5

Should there be an obstruction in the way, such as a tree, telegraph pole or large immovable rock, by a similar calculation, including the space occupied by the obstruction as that much tent space, the proper distance between tents can be obtained.

In establishing the distances between the line officers tents it must first be observed that both must be set so as to occupy 21 feet, the width of a company street. Each tent being 9 feet wide, there being two tents, would leave a space of three feet between the captain's and the lieutenants' tents of a company. The distance between the tents of the officers of the various companies can then be obtained as above.

The distance between the backs of company tents is two feet; between the sides, four feet; between mess tents from center to center, 37 feet. Mess tents on each side of camp are distant from the camp line, 17½ feet.

IN its forty-five years existence as a regiment, the Second Infantry, National Guard of Pennsylvania has had six Colonels, Robert C. H. Brock, having been elected to that position on April 28, to succeed Colonel H. T. Dechert, whose commission had expired, and who declined to again become a candidate. The first colonel of the regiment was Peter Lyle, who had commanded it when it was but a company, made it a regiment, carried it through the Civil War, and retained command until 1879. He was succeeded by Colonel Robert P. Dechert, who was in command until he was appointed to command the First Brigade, in 1890. Colonel Oliver C. Bosbyshell was next, serving until 1893, when he gave way to John Biddle Porter, who, in turn, was succeeded by H. T. Dechert, in 1899.

In selecting Mr. Brock as a commandant, the officers of the regiment were wise, although there was an undercurrent against taking up a man who had had no previous experience in military life. There was a notable precedent for the action, in that made by the Third Infantry, when Edward Morrell was elected its colonel from civil life, and whose abilities quickly demonstrated that he was the right man in the right place. Going further, Colonel Ralston, also of the Third, was chosen from civil life, and he was also a first-class regimental commander. Another officer, also of the Third Infantry, who was taken from civil life, is the present Lieutenant-Colonel of that regiment, Benjamin C. Tilghman, Jr., who is one of the best officers in the National Guard of any state.

Colonel Brock comes to the Second without any military experience, but he comes there in the prime of a life spent as a student and man of affairs, which has given him a ripeness of judgment and an experience in administrative and executive duties, which will prove of value in his new position.

Of modest mien, there is yet an air of reserve force about the new colonel, which impresses one very favorably. He is sturdy of frame, of powerful build, and while not aggressive in demeanor, he is one of the kind of men, who, when he does a thing, does it well, and with vigor.

Colonel Brock was born in Philadelphia in 1861. He was educated at St. Paul's School, and later matriculated at Worcester Hall, Oxford, England, and afterwards studied law, and is a member of the Philadelphia Bar. In all his years he has been fond of out-door life, and has also been a deep student. As a yachtsman, he is well known both here and abroad. He is a member of the New York and the Corinthian Yacht Clubs, and for a number of years maintained a magnificent schooner. His greatest interest, however, has been centered in archaeology, he being President of the Pennsylvania Society of the Archaeological Institute of America. He is a director of the Academy of the Fine Arts, a manager of the Franklin Institute, and of the Epileptic Hospital and is a member of the Sons of the Revolution and of the Young Republicans. He is also somewhat of a clubman, being a member of all the leading clubs of the city.

With such a man as its colonel, the Second Infantry surely has bright days before it. The new colonel is the unanimous choice of the officers, and with their loyal support, this fine old regiment will promptly move up in standing, both as a military organization and as a social factor.

THE inspections of the Fourth Infantry have just been completed and it is stated on good authority that the Regiment has shown a vast improvement over last year, and its rating in all probability will be in the First Division.

The inspections of Companies "H", "C", "F" and "B" were especially commented upon.

Captain Case's inspection (Company "H") was one of the finest seen in the division. The work was snappy and, notwithstanding the limited armory space, the movements were accurately executed. It is said that the interrogatories of the commissioned and non-commissioned officers were well answered and that Captain Shannon's Company ("C") and "H" are pretty evenly matched for first honors in the Regiment.

NOT since the unveiling of the Washington Monument (1897) have the citizens of Philadelphia had an opportunity of witnessing the entire First Brigade on parade.

Brigader General John W. Schall will parade his command on Saturday afternoon, May 14th, and the several organizations will appear in their distinctive full dress uniforms, accompanied by their superb bands. The pageant, will, no doubt, be imposing, and should make a very favorable impression upon the general public.

NOTES

Captain Charles H. Harvey, formerly in command of Company "K," Third Regiment, is expected to return to active service as a Staff Officer in the near future.

Major General Charles Miller will add two additional prizes for this year's rifle work in the First and Third Brigades. The trophies will be somewhat like that of the Second Brigade, but the conditions will be changed so that the Regiment making the best aggregate score for the season at its home ranges will be declared the winner.

The teams sent to Mt. Gretna will not be considered in this contest.

The Division Inspector, Colonel John P. Penney, has just finished the inspection of the Cavalry squadron and reports the same to be in excellent condition. It is stated that the armory of the Governor's Troop at Harrisburg is very unsatisfactory and the troop is not in a position to hold mounted drills during the year. The First and Second Troop, Troop "A" and the Sheridan Troop of Tyrone all have tan bark floors and the same condition should prevail with Captain Ott's efficient organization.

It is authoritatively reported that several changes will shortly take place on the Division and Governor's Staff.

Second Regiment

Colonel Robert C. H. Brock, of the Second Infantry is already making his interest felt in the command, by offering a cash prize of $100 for the best drilled company from now until October 1st.

The Field, Line and Staff of the Second Infantry, will shortly visit Gettysburg as the guests of Colonel Brock, in order to familiarize themselves with the ground and points of interest which it is expected will greatly facilitate their work in the coming Division manœuvres, July 23rd to 30th. Colonel Brock evidently realizes the importance of Extended Order work.

Colonel Brock has appointed as Captain and Chaplain of the Second Regiment, the Right Reverend Alexander Mackay Smith, Coadjutor Bishop of Pennsylvania.

Third Regiment

Colonel Price, of the Third Infantry, has secured from the United States Government, a new ambulance of the latest design and improvements. The Third is the first organization in the State to receive one of these, and it will be used in the parade on May 14th.

Fourth Regiment

The formation of Colonel O'Neill's Fourth Infantry in the future will be as follows:

First Battalion—D, F, G, and H.
Second Battalion—C, A, and B.
Third Battalion—K, E, and I.

Captain Phaon E. Sheidy, commanding Company "G" located at Pine Grove, was somewhat handicapped in this year's work, having just been elected in command of the company a few weeks prior to the inspection. While the inspection work of this company was not up to the standard, it is confidently expected that Captain Sheidy will make a complete reorganization for the better in the near future.

He has already taken steps to improve the armory conditions of this company, in which movement he will be supported by the representative men of the town. He will also enroll in the company some of the best young men in that section.

Sixth Regiment

The condition of several companies in Colonel Coryell's command, Sixth Infantry, are said to be very unsatisfactory and the Colonel is seriously considering the feasibility of having these transferred to other sections. Company "G" of Doylestown to Bristol and Company "H" of Media to Coatesville, or some other point where they would be more likely to attain a new life and higher standard of efficiency.

It is stated that the Wayne Fencibles (Company "I" of West Chester) are also in bad shape. It is expected that two of their officers will shortly leave the service. The inspection of this company, which was postponed to April 29th, did not show any improvement over last year.

Major Herbert A. Arnold, Surgeon of the Sixth Infantry, on April 17th visited his son who is a cadet at the Military Academy at West Point. Young Arnold had been suffering for some time past with appendicitis and it was feared that it would be necessary to perform an operation. The physician,however, declared him to be out of immediate danger and he has advised the Major that he is again able to take part in the athletics and sprinted two miles without any ill effects.

Captain Samuel A. Whitaker, Company "D" located at Phœnixville, and Captain James Cresson, Company "F" located at Norristown, have adopted a very novel plan of familiarizing themselves with the school of the Battalion. The new armory of Company "F" is admirably located and of sufficiently large space to permit of Battalion drill, Captain Whitaker bringing his men down in the electric cars. The companies are divided into four platoons and the company commanders alternate in commanding the same. Both of these young officers are energetic, and through their efforts have greatly improved the old Norris City Rifles and the Wheatley Cadets.

The inspection of Company "A" of the Sixth Regiment, located at Pottstown, Captain Schuyler commanding, was, as usual, one of the best inspections in the First brigade.

Generals Stewart, Schall and McKibbin, and many other prominent officials were afterwards entertained by the officers of the company.

Ninth Regiment

The inspection of Company "H" of the Ninth Infantry, located at Pittston, Captain Dougher commanding, showed a decided improvement over last year, but the inspecting officer found the State property improperly cared for and in somewhat dirty condition. This is to be regretted, as Company "H" at one time was regarded as a high standard company in the Third Brigade.

Colonel C. Bow Dougherty recently entertained his entire Field and Staff at his residence. During a general discussion of prospective promotions, several new names were suggested for Commissary, vice Darte promoted to Third Brigade Staff.

Thirteenth Regiment

It is stated that the resignation of Lieut. John M. Edwards, Company "K", Thirteenth Infantry, will not be accepted, as his services are considered too valuable by Colonels Watres and Stillwell to permit of his leaving the service at this time.

Captain George C. Merriman, Company "F", is the Summary Court Officer of the Thirteenth Infantry, having been detailed by Colonel Stillwell on April 6th. He recently tried several members of Company "G" at Montrose for neglect of duty. Some of the derelicts employed counsel and the Captain had quite an interesting time. They were glad, however, to meet the fines imposed and avoid further punishment and notoriety in the community. Captain Merriman is the right man in the right place.

Eighteenth Regiment

Colonel Frank I. Rutledge, of the Eighteenth Regiment and Colonel Thompson, of the Fourteenth Regiment, are actively engaged in preparing for the great military event incidental to the unveiling of the Hawkins Monument, June 11th. It has been many years since Pittsburgh was honored with a large military pageant. The organizations who will, in all probability participate, are the Fifth Infantry, Colonel Elder; Tenth Regiment, Colonel Barnett; Fourteenth Regiment, Colonel Thompson; Sixteenth Regiment, Colonel Hulings; Third Regiment, Colonel Price; Thirteenth Regiment, Colonel Watres; Sheridan Troop, Captain Jones; Battery "B", Captain Reese and the new Troop of Cavalry which has recently been organized near Pittsburgh.

A new campaign hat has been adopted by the State and will be issued upon requisition for use at the coming Division Encampment. N. G. P. is pierced on the side of the hat. This will in a great measure stop men from wearing State military headgear for ordinary civilian wear.

Colonel H. P. Bope will also parade a full Regiment of Cadets. There is some talk of parading these organizations as a provisional Division, possibly with General Miller in command with the Eighteenth, Fourteenth and Tenth Regiments constituting a Brigade under command of General Wiley, and the Sixteenth, Fifth and Third under Colonel Hulings (Brigadier General U. S. V.) and the Third Brigade representation with the mounted Troops and such other military bodies under command of Colonel Watres.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST REGIMENT INFANTRY.
FIRST BRIGADE, N. G. P.
ARMORY, S. E. COR. BROAD AND CALLOWHILL STS.
PHILADELPHIA, MARCH 31, 1904.

Commanding Officer,
SIR:—

At a stated meeting of the Board of Directors, First Regiment Infantry of Pennsylvania, March 14, 1904, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

1. Resolved, That the Rifle Range of this Association be opened for a season of four months, June, July, August and September, 1904, for the use of the First Regiment Infantry and such other organizations as may desire to lease the range, at a rental of $150 per company for said season of four months, and that no organization be permitted to use the Range until it shall have executed a lease with good and sufficient security for the payment of said rental, as agreed upon in said lease.

2. This action was necessary, because of the loss incurred in maintaining the Range since its opening in 1892, amounting to about $10,000; $3,000 of which is for extraordinary expenses in excess of receipts in reinforcing the Range and the addition of the 300 yard Range as required in G. O. No. 24, A. G. O., May 25, 1903.

3. Where four or more companies of regimental organizations execute leases, the Field and Staff of that organization will be permitted to use the Range without charge.

4. Season tickets will be issued to such individual officers and men who desire to practice on the Range upon the payment of $5.00 in advance, and said tickets will not be transferable.

5. The Rifle Range will open June 1st, and close October 8th, 1904, except from July 23d to 30th inclusive, during encampment, which time it will be closed.

6. Blank forms of lease for signature will be furnished upon application, and must be executed on or before May 1, 1904.

GENERAL ORDERS,
No. 12.

1. The following circular is published for the information and guidance of the National Guard of Pennsylvania:

NATIONAL GUARD OF PENNSYLVANIA,
OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL,
CHESTER, PA., April 13th, 1904.

Circular No. 3.

The following decisions have been made and are published to the National Guard for the information and guidance of all concerned:

SALUTES BY GUARDS WHILE MARCHING—Regarding the question how guards should salute while marching, under paragraph 83 of the Manual of Guard Duty, and paragraph 1082, Cavalry Drill Regulations, 1896, it is held, that the Manual of Guard Duty, being the latest publication, shall govern.

WHEN DO BOTH SENTINELS EXECUTE PORT ARMS OR SABER—Regarding the question when do both sentinels execute port arms or saber, under paragraph 155 of the Manual of Guard Duty, it is held, that at the command of the corporal, No. (—), both the new and old sentinel execute port arms, the new sentinel approaching the old sentinel in this position, halting about one pace from him.

FRANK G. SWEENEY,
Inspector General.

II. In accordance with the provisions of the Act of Assembly, approved April 28, 1899 (Section 44), the following named officer is upon his own request hereby relieved from active service and placed on the Retired list:

Colonel Henry T. Dechert, Second Regiment Infantry.

III. Authority is hereby given the commanding Officer, First Brigade, to order an election for Colonel, Second Regiment Infantry, to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Colonel Henry T. Dechert.

By order of SAMUEL W. PENNYPACKER,

HEADQUARTERS NATIONAL GUARD OF PENN'A.
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
HARRISBURG, Pa., April 26th, 1904.

GENERAL ORDERS.
No. 13.

I. Upon application of the Acting Inspector of Rifle Practice, First Brigade, approved at Intermediate Headquarters, permission is hereby granted organizations of the First Brigade, and like permission is granted all organizations of the National Guard, to use in gallery practice or official gallery qualification, where such official gallery qualification is provided for by General Orders of Regimental, Brigade, or Division Headquarters, a .22 caliber barrel arranged to fit the U. S. magazine rifle, caliber.30, (Krag-Jorgensen), designed by H. M. Pope, and manufactured by the J. Stevens Arms and Tool Company, of Chicopee Falls, Massachusetts.

These barrels conform in every particular except the caliber to the regulation barrel of the U. S. Magazine Rifle caliber .30

To use this barrel, no alteration to the bolt action is necessary, the barrels being made with an eccentric shoulder, nd so arranged that the firing pin strikes the outer edge of the rimfire cartridge.

Any armorer or gunsmith who understands the dissembling of the U. S. Magazine Rifle, caliber .30, can remove the regulation barrel and insert the .22 caliber barrel.

II. In granting permission to use the .22 caliber barrel, the advantages recognized are:

1. The adaptability to smaller armories, where ranges of 50 yards or 75 yards are not obtainable. The range for use of the .22 caliber barrel is 25 yards.

2. The opportunity at slight cost of giving instructions in the use of the rifle, and particularly in holding and sighting the piece.

3. The reduced cost of ammunition. The gallery ammunition for the caliber .30 rifle costs $16.00 per thousand rounds; for the .22 caliber, $2.30 per thousand rounds.

4. The accuracy of shooting.

5. Labor and time saved in cleaning the rifle during practice, as one hundred shots may be fired without cleaning or wiping the barrel, and this not interfering with the accuracy of the shot.

III. The .22 caliber barrel, and ammunition for same, will be furished upon requisition at the following prices, and the amount charged to Annual Allowance account:

Barrels, $15.00 each.

Ammunition, $23.60 for 10,000 rounds, packed in one case.

Requisition for ammunition must be made in lots of 10,000 rounds.

A supply of barrels will be precured for use with the caliber .30 Carbine.

IV. In cases where no armorer or gunsmith is available to make the change of barrel, the rifle may be sent to Stte Arsenal, Harrisburg, Pa., by express, charges prepaid, and properly invoiced, and the exchange will be made and the rifl and caliber .30 barrel returned by express, charges to follow. No charge will be made for changing the barrel.

By order of SAMUEL W. PENNYPACKER,
Governor and Commander-in-Chief.
THOMAS J. STEWART,
Adjutant General.
